

HISTORY

In 1970, two waterproofers saw the need for a professional organization, which would benefit both individual members and the entire waterproofing industry. Recognizing this need six charter members incorporated the Waterproofing Contractors Association in 1971.

Since that time, the Association has grown to include over 60 member companies from all of North and South Carolina, as well as industry representatives from 7 other states. The Waterproofing Contractors Association is proud to have been the first regional waterproofing association in the U.S.

Today, over 34 years later, membership in the WCA consists of contractors, suppliers, designers, manufacturers, and distributors dedicated to the advancement of the waterproofing industry.

OBJECTIVES

- Elevate and sustain the professional character of the members.
- Publish and provide relevant industry knowledge to educate members on proper industry practices and new technologies.
- Represent and safeguard the common interest of its members and the public by practicing moral and ethical standards.
- Promote goodwill between various construction industry disciplines.

In 2000, the Association launched a comprehensive Internet website with a complete overview of the WCA, its mission and services, and a complete listing of members by area of specialty.
